

Stainless Steel

One feature of expanded metal is its ability to disperse heat across the surface area. This makes it ideal for applications involving high temperatures. Stainless steel meshes can withstand high temperatures (grades 304,316, 321, up to 925°C and grade 430 up to 815°C).